L3 Australia Announces Communication System Training Award

MELBOURNE, Australia, January 30, 2017 – L3 Australia announced today that it has been awarded a five-year sustainment training contract from KBR, the training services provider for the Canberra Class Landing Helicopter Dock (LHD). The arrangement will establish a strong relationship between KBR and L3, contributing to the advancement of the Royal Australian Navy's (RAN) learning and development capability.

Under the new contract, L3 Australia's training team will provide Operator and Maintainer training to the RAN, covering the entire Integrated Communication System for its two LHDs. The training will include L3's Symphony configuration system, networks, SATCOM, Tactical Digital Information Link (TADIL) external radio communications and all internal voice communications for the platform.

"L3 Australia recently delivered the most advanced communication system for the two Canberra Class LHDs. Today, we are pleased to provide the training support that will allow the RAN to take full advantage of the capability offered by L3's LHD Integrated Communication System," said Andrew Petersen, Managing Director of L3 Australia. "We are committed to creating, delivering and supporting advanced communications solutions for the Australian Defence Force and our international allies."

L3 Australia creates, delivers and supports communication systems for maritime operations and provides support for L3 equipment in land, sea and air domains.

Headquartered in New York City, L3 Technologies employs approximately 38,000 people worldwide and is a leading provider of a broad range of communication and electronic systems and products used on military, homeland security and commercial platforms. L3 is also a prime contractor in aerospace systems, security and detection systems, and pilot training. The company reported 2016 sales of $10.5 billion.
