US Navy Selects L3Harris Technologies to Provide Communications and Network Solutions for Battle Force Tactical Network

Highlights:
- Enables distributed maritime operations
- Provides assured communications in contested environment
- Supports international interoperability with coalition forces

CAMDEN, NJ, Dec. 16, 2019 — The U.S. Naval Information Warfare Systems Command has selected L3Harris Technologies (NYSE:LHX) to provide advanced communications and network solutions for the Battle Force Tactical Network (BFTN) program.

L3Harris will provide systems-of-network hardware as well as engineering and technical services for future enhancements in support of the BFTN system. BFTN acquires and integrates commercial, off-the-shelf technology for the Navy’s Program Executive Office Command, Control, Communications, Computers and Intelligence.

The BFTN system provides secure connectivity to the maritime operational environment for Navy and coalition forces with a persistent internet protocol over radio frequency networking capability in the maritime operational environment to counter satellite communications-denied environments. The system also delivers line-of-sight and beyond-line-of-sight secure wireless network connectivity for ships, submarines, aircraft and naval shore facilities.

“This selection represents a key milestone for L3Harris’ commitment in providing advanced communications and network solutions for the U.S. Navy,” said Don Hairston, President, C5 Systems, L3Harris. “We are focused on bringing the Navy superior solutions to assure tactical communications and network connectivity.”
